

Would you step up to mentor the next generation of young women, if we equipped you with a method and truth-filled resources that work?

ETC., short for Evening Tea & Chat, offers a perfect method for equipping today's Christian women to step into significant mentoring roles with the next generation. It is a simple, natural, and well-thought through method that provides structure, transparency, and growth. Starting your own ETC. ministry is easy, especially with the resources provided at www.moretobe.com.

- Partnership: Find at least one Christian woman to partner with you in hosting and leading your ETC. ministry. A group of two or three is ideal, but not necessary.
- Location: Pick a location, such as a home or church, for your gatherings.
- Date & Time: Set a bi-monthly date with a 2-hour commitment.
- Invite Girls: Invite Christian and non-Christian tweens, teens, or twenty-somethings from church, your community, or amongst your daughter's friends.
- Tea: Provide lots of hot water and a collection of tea bags for the girls to grab upon their arrival.
- Index Cards: Also have on hand a stack of index cards, pens, and a small basket.
- Topics & Truth: Pick a Topics & Truth free download to print out for yourself and the group. Work through the topic in about 10 -15 minutes, teaching the main points. You may also purchase the Dig Deep Guides, which are full of illustration ideas, questions, and tips.
- Q&A Time: While the topic is being taught, invite the girls to write down questions -- about anything -- on index cards and toss them in a basket. Working with your ETC. partner, for the next forty minutes, take turns answering their questions with a Scripture reference in the context of life application. Feel free to use a personal example, but remember that less is often more! Also, make the most of the collection of Q&As at www.moretobe.com. If you don't know an answer, skip that question with a mention to follow up one-on-one.
- Prayer: Close the time in prayer, then encourage the girls to get a second cup of tea.
- Authentic Relationships: While the girls are relaxing and sipping tea, this is a wonderful time to be open for one-on-one conversations. The girls will trust you more and more over time! Let the relationships grow naturally. You can also invite other Christian women to attend ETC. and be available for this portion of the night.

ETC. is an awesome way to impact the next generation. We hope you'll make the most of our resources at www.moretobe.com and prayerfully consider beginning an ETC. ministry. Please contact Lisa at more@moretobe.com with your questions.

More to Be is passionate about impacting teens through twenty-something gals with the Truth and inspiring today's Christian women to step into significant mentoring roles to impact the next generation.

We believe that God designed us to be a multi-generational people, where the older generation of women should be involved and invested in training up the young women in their lives (Titus 2:3-5). Because of this belief, More to Be is committed to equipping Christian women with resources packed with practical mentoring principles and life application ideas. Our resources include the ETC. Mentoring program, our Topics & Truth free downloads, in-depth Dig Deep Guides, a collection of real answers to real questions, and opportunities for life coaching. At the heart of More to Be is a vision to see women (young and old) become more bright, more beautiful, more like Jesus as a personally relevant God enters their lives (2 Corinthians 3:16-18 MSG) through mentoring relationships and resources steeped in Biblical truth. This is what it means to experience life transformed -- a life where there is more to be as we become more like Him and impact the world around us.
